

RECEIVES BIDS ON NEW UNIT AT PLANT

City Council Hears Spokesmen of Firms Seeking to Sell Equipment
For Making Electricity

FROM $40,000 TO $60,000

Indiana Electric Corporation Seeks to Sell Current to City for Emergency Uses

Considerable business was transacted Tuesday night when the city council met in regular session, with the main part of the evening being devoted to the opening of bids on equipment for a new unit to the water and light plant, for the purpose of generating more electricity.

Firms from all over the country were represented at the meeting, and more than a dozen different bids were offered, some firms bidding on parts of the equipment separately, and others as a completely installed unit, with prices ranging from $40,000 to $60,000.

The present "load" on the equipment is regarded as about taxed, and with the addition of several more factories in sight, it will be necessary to increase the equipment to meet future needs. The bids were opened and read, and each representative was given a few minutes to talk. No decision concerning a purchase was made, and this will be taken up at some future date.

Immediately before opening bids, a communication was read, addressed to the council by the Indiana Electric Corporation of Indianapolis, in which they wanted to interest the city in the purchase of additional power from a transmission line to this city, and sold on a meter basis.

John Ferguson, vice president of the concern, was present and attempted to interest the council on the proposition, but he was given little encouragement. Mr. Ferguson stated that a transmission line of high voltage would be run here and placed at the plant to serve as an auxiliary unit to the local plant and the cost would be nothing.

The amount of electricity used would be sold the city, he said, on a meter basis, and that the cost would be much less than it would cost to make the electricity in the plant. The council was not interested to the extent of inquiring the rate that would be charged.

Mr. Ferguson attempted to show that the city could save the expense of buying the equipment at this time, as his concern, which he says supplies many cities in Indiana, either as a whole, or as an auxiliary unit, would furnish the electricity at

Two Close Calls In One Evening Enough For Him

Tuesday, July 7, was Charles Pussey's unlucky day.

After narrowly escaping death under a Pennsylvania passenger train at the Ninth street crossing of the railroad about seven o'clock last night, he started to Laurel and his automobile was wrecked when it upset and rolled down an embankment.

Pussey escaped without serious injury, but he was considerably shaken up after the two narrow escapes within a few hours.

In order to avoid the train, Pussey steered his car in the direction the train was going, and managed to get across the track without being hit. When he stopped his coupe, it was up in Merle Winkler's yard.

It was not long after this close call that he started to Laurel to visit a relative, and when near the town, a horse he was passing frightened and reared up, causing him to steer his car to one side quickly and it toppled over an embankment, turning over twice.

Pussey drives a truck for McIntire and Hilbert, bakers.

SEVEN RUSH COUNTY BOYS GO INTO CAMP

Four From Rushville and Three From Milroy to Take Training at Fort Harrison

TEN HAD BEEN ACCEPTED

Citizens Military Training Camp
Will Continue Until Aug. 6—Enrollment of 1,780

Seven Rush county boys, four of them from Rushville and three from Milroy and vicinity, entered the citizen's military training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, today. The camp will continue until August 6.

Rush county was given a quota of eight, which was filled and two additional young men were accepted for the camp, because of other counties not having filled their quotas, but three of the boys, after being accepted, decided not to attend.

Frank Green, Jr., Robert Pitman, William Caldwell and John Beaver were the Rushville boys going to camp. All of them are in high school. The Milroy boys in the camp are Herman Boring, Charles Searight and Robert E. Wolfe.

Clarence Worneldorf, John Joyce and Wilbur Walters were all accepted, but later concluded they could not attend the camp, the latter having left the city immediately after graduating from the Rushville high school in June.

The enrollment at the camp is expected to reach 1,780 by Sunday.

The embryo soldiers will be divided into eight rifle companies of 150 to 160 men each, a headquarters company of the same number, and a band. In conjunction with the training of these companies there will be in operation two divisions of reserve officers, one for a period of two weeks, concluding next week, and another for six weeks.

Lieut. Col. Edwin J. Nowlen, commanding officer of the 11th infantry, is in command of the training camp, with Lieut. Col. Wylie T. Conway of the detached officers.

Rushville Moving Picture Is Well Received At First Public Showing

Princess Theatre Crowded With People For Both Shows at Premier of "A Day in Hollywood." Number Remain All Evening to Get Second Look at Home Talent Movie.

That the people of Rushville and the surrounding community have been reading with great interest the accounts appearing daily in the Daily Republican regarding the home talent movie, "A Day in Hollywood" was patently evidenced Tuesday evening at the Princess theatre when people stood in line for considerable lengths of time in order to view the first showing of the picture. The house was jammed to capacity for both shows and there is every indication there will be an equally large crowd tonight and on the last showing Thursday.

The Daily Republican received a great many complimentary expressions today regarding the production. One man stated he had never had so much enjoyment out of a picture. Another said that for a home talent, the plot was unusually clever and acted out well, and that the photography was excellent considering the lack of an expensively equipped movie studio. There were many others who paid compliments and the principals of the cast, Miss Rosalyn Reed, Mrs. Curt Hesler, Jean Kiplinger, Walter Hubbard and Franklyn Miller were the recipients of a large share of them. A number of people remained in the theatre all evening in order to see the show twice.

It has been with pleasure that the Daily Republican has presented the popular community picture. We wish to compliment Director Fetty and Cameraman Kennedy for their work and hope that they may return to Rushville in the next few years. They go from here to Fort Wayne, Ind., and probably next fall will go to Connersville. Director Fetty wishes to thank personally George C. Wyatt and company for furnishing the stage settings; the Collyer studio for the use of photographs, and the Rushville Automobile Sales Company for the two Chrysler automobiles used in the wreck scene.

SAFETY CONFERENCE IS HELD

Request May be Made for Inter-
rurban to Stop at Through Roads

Indianapolis, Ind., July 8—Possibility of asking the state public service commission as to whether interurban crossings and was part of stop at all through public roads, was considered today at a safety conference of Marion county officials.

The meeting was called by the increasing number of accidents at interurban crossings and was part of the campaign to reduce the toll.

"It is not the fault of interurbans," said John Kitley, county commissioner. "People in automobiles flirt with death constantly and seem to enjoy it. The fault is with the careless drivers."

CONFESSES THEFT

Leon Ridout, age 17 years, is in jail following a confession of taking a purse containing $7.50 from the house of Luther Warrick, living in West Water street. The youth has been staying at the Warrick home, and when questioning about the theft, he admitted it, according to the officers. Just what disposition will be made of the case, was not decided today. The boy is said to be in poor health, and may not be responsible for his actions.

BOOST CHAUTAUQUA AT JACKSON TOWNSHIP MEET

Rushville Boosters Attend Regular Monthly Session of Farm Bureau
at School House

MEETING AT WEBB TONIGHT

A large crowd of chautauqua boosters went to the Jackson Township Farm Bureau's monthly meeting Tuesday evening at Jackson township's school building and enjoyed the hospitality of the farmer's organization.

The principal address was made by the Rev. Gibson Wilson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who spoke on the value of the chautauqua in the development of a community spirit.

Dr. J. B. Kinsinger, president of the Rush County Chautauqua association, talked briefly about the chautauqua and described the plan of selling season tickets.

Chautauqua boosters will go to Webb school tonight for the monthly meeting of the Rushville Township Farm Bureau. A large crowd from Rushville is expected at the meeting.

The Walker township meeting will be visited by a good sized crowd from Rushville Thursday night at Homer, and on Friday night at Gings, the Union township meeting will also have some chautauqua speakers.

NO CHANGE IN TEMPERATURE

Excessive Heat Continues and Thundershowers Are Predicted

No immediate relief is predicted from the hot weather, as the report for tonight and Thursday is for probably overcast skies, and possibly thunderstorms in scattered areas, but no noticeable change in temperature.

The mercury this week has been in the 90 column, with the heat having a moist and sultry feeling. The present wave seems to be general, with eastern states reporting extremely hot temperatures. Tuesday the southern part of Indiana was several degrees hotter than central Indiana, according to the reports of the weather department.

COLBY QUITS THE SCOPES DEFENSE

New York Constitutional Lawyer
Wires John R. Neal he Can Not Participate

BRYAN LAYS DOWN THE ISSUE

Constitutional Amendment Banish-
ing Evolution From Schools, Goal of Fundamentalists

(By United Press)

Dayton, Tenn., July, 8—Bainbridge Colby, New York constitutional lawyer, also one of the staff of counsel for the defense of John T. Scopes, today notified John R. Neal, senior defense counsel, that he would be unable to participate in the case.

Colby based his withdrawal on the sudden necessity of his staying in New York due to the decision of the New York Intermediate appellate court, holding the New York City home rule constitutional amendment invalid. Colby is one of the counsel for the city.

The great issue in the Scopes evolution case is not whether evolution is or is not true but whether the state of Tennessee has not transcended the limits of its own constitution, Mr. Neal declared in a statement today in reply to Wm. Jennings Bryan's speech here last night.

A constitutional amendment banishing the evolution theory from all American schools forever is the distant goal of organized fundamentalism.

Bryan flung down the gage of battle in an address to the Progressive Dayton Club at the Aequa Hotel last night.

If the Tennessee anti-evolution law is held invalid in the lower courts, he said, it will be appealed through all stages, to Washington. If the United States Supreme Court holds it unconstitutional, it will be appealed to the American people.

The defense today was considering the possibility of challenging a number of the jury panel because several were present and applauded the Commoner.

MRS. JOHN SWAIN INJURED

Mrs. John Swain of this city, who with her husband, are spending the summer at Lake McCoy near Greensburg, suffered a painful injury the latter part of the week, when by mistake she poured a bottle of nitric acid over her right hand and wrist, inflicting a deep burn. She mistook the bottle for mosquito lotion. A physician was at the lake when the accident happened, and he dressed her injury.

College Boy Hikers Stop On For Brief Visit Here

Russell Hammer and John Nollen of Newton, Iowa, students in Monmouth college, Monmouth, Ill., stopped off here Tuesday evening for a short visit with Fred S. Casady, formerly of Newton, while on a hike from Newton to Maysville, Ky. They left home last Saturday and were able to make good progress through "lifts" from motorists.

Both boys were members of a "Boy City," with a population of 700, in charge of Mr. Casady, when he was in community Y. M. C. A. work in Newton. The "city" had a complete government operated by boys.

They had a great day on the playground equipment and in the wading pool. All visitors brought well filled baskets, and a dinner was enjoyed at noon. The visitors remained until late in the afternoon.

REVIEW BOARD ENDS ITS ANNUAL SESSION

Closes Meetings Held for Past 38 Days to Check and Equalize Assessments

BEFORE STATE BOARD NEXT

County Assessor Notified to Appear on July 22 For Equalization
Session

The county board of review completed its annual session today, having spent thirty-eight days in checking personal property and real estate assessments fixed by the township assessors and in equalizing valuations where necessary and assessing domestic corporations.

All public utilities owning property in the county and the banks are assessed by the state board of tax commissioners.

Earl F. Priest, ex-officio member of the board, has been notified that assessments in Rush county will be considered by the state board on Wednesday, July 22.

This is the second session of the year for the state board and is called for the purpose, as stipulated in the Indiana tax law, of modifying, where necessary, the assessments of personal property and real estate.

Nine other counties are scheduled to appear before the state board on the same day that Rush county is called. They are: Benton, Tipton, Clinton, Hancock, Delaware, Howard, Marion, Johnson and Shelby.

Rush county is always grouped, for this purpose, with these counties, as they are the wealthiest counties in the state and have taxables that are very similar in value.

The purpose of the state board hearing and for considering such assessments is to equalize assessments of property for taxation among the various counties of the state.

After the hearings are concluded, the state board will certify its findings and such information as it may have to the auditors of the counties wherein it may appear to the board that the assessments are not uniform or equal either as to local units or as to classes of property, and are not in harmony with the assessments in other counties as the same shall be considered for equalization purposes.

After the action of the county boards of review upon the certified notices to their counties shall have been certified back to the state board, the board without further hearing will proceed to equalize the value of property as listed and assessed in the various counties and

MINISTERS, FAMILIES ENJOY PICNIC AT PARK

Pastors of Connersville District, Methodist Episcopal Church, to Hold Frolic Annually

LIKE THE RUSHVILLE PARK

Ministers and their families of 32 churches in the Connersville district, Methodist Episcopal church, held a picnic here Tuesday at Memorial park, and the meeting was such a success, that it was voted to make the affair an annual event. The beauty, conveniences and other features at Memorial park, were highly praised by the visitors, and it is probably that the picnic next year will be held here.

There were about 130 present for the all day gathering, with only six of the ministers in the district being unable to attend. Among the visitors were Dr. F. R. Hannan of the Drew Theological Seminary of New Jersey.

The motto for the day was "fun, frolic and fellowship," and no set program was carried out. The ministers and their families became acquainted with others in the district. Baseball, croquet, tennis, horse shoe games and other entertaining features were enjoyed, and the children had a great day on the playground equipment and in the wading pool.

All visitors brought well filled baskets, and a dinner was enjoyed at noon. The visitors remained until late in the afternoon.

FORMER COMMISSIONER FILES ASSAULT CHARGE

George H. Bell of Center Township
Accuses A. R. Herkless in Mayor's Court Affidavit

BEVER CASE IS CONTINUED

George H. Bell of Center township, former commissioner, has filed an affidavit in police court here against A. R. Herkless of this city, the charge being for assault and battery. The defendant will probably be tried Thursday evening before Mayor Thomas.

According to the officers, Bell and Herkless mixed in an argument of some nature on the highway east of Mays, where Herkless is building a bridge for the county. Just what happened is not contained in the affidavit, excepting that Herkless is charged with assaulting him. It was reported that Bell was pushed in the river during the affair. According to officers, Herkless is preparing to file a charge against Bell.

The cases against Fred Bever, charged with transporting liquor and for carrying a weapon, were scheduled for a hearing in police court today, but continued on account of the attorney for the defendant being absent, and it will probably be set for some time Thursday. The defendant remains in jail unable to provide the $2,500 bond as fixed by Mayor Thomas.

HONEY DEW MIST ATTACKING TREES

Is Concentrated Sap of the Tree,
Given Off by Plant Lice and Other
Scale Insects

PREVALENT IN THIS PART

Purdue Receives Many Inquiries
Concerning the Mist, and Offers
Remedy Suggestions

Lafayette, Ind., July 8—From all corners of Indiana, inquiries have been received by the Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station relative to a "mist" or "rain" falling from maple, linden and other trees onto the sidewalks and automobiles. They also have asked about the sticky and glossy upper surfaces of the leaves, the letters coming from several hundred persons in all sections of the state, but especially from the central part where it appears to be worse than in the extreme north or south sections.

"This mist is the honey dew, the concentrated sap of the tree, given off by plant lice and scale insects, particularly the cottony maple scale, which is more widespread and destructive throughout Indiana this year than for many seasons," said Prof. J. J. Davis, head of the Purdue entomology department. "The insects not only injure the tree by taking the juices but the leaves covered with honey dew are unable to function properly."

Prof. Davis explained that plants lice are only occasional visitors and that control measures generally are not necessary. However, the cottony maple scale, although it fluctuates from year to year because of its natural enemies, usually occurs several consecutive years and many times kills the trees. It may be seen now because of the infested branches resembling strings of popcorn. These cottony masses are thousands of eggs from which hatch the scale young. After feeding for a time, these scale insects return to the branches of the tree partly grown and pass the winter, waiting for growth to start in the spring when they also start operations.

Spraying the latter part of June or early in July after the young have hatched with a lubricating oil emulsion, one part to forty of water, or with a spray made with one part of soda fish oil soap, dissolved in water to which has been added 1 ounce of 40 percent nicotine sulphate, are effective. This spray must hit the insect, which is difficult with the heavy foliage. As a result, spraying this fall after the leaves have fallen, or in the spring before they start, is perhaps the surest control. Any standard miscible oil spray will effect control, providing the spraying is thoroughly done. A half-way job will not bring proper results, Prof. Davis cautions.

Kills Husband

MARY SKIBO (ABOVE), AND HER MOTHER, MRS. MARY SKIBO (BELOW).

Mrs. Mary Skibo, 29, confessed that she killed her husband, Frank Skibo, at Michigan City, Ind., by beating him with a crow bar in a drunken stupor. She is held on a charge of murder. But before confessing, she tried to fasten the blame on her daughter, Mary, 15, who she said had quarreled with Skibo over a loan of $5. The girl professed her innocence, however, and police finally got Mrs. Skibo to admit the killing. She murdered Skibo, she said, because he drank, squandered his money and made her take boarders. After a keeping a his body for the rest of 24 hours, Mrs. Skibo was in an alley, where, according to

ANTHRACITE OPERATORS

MEET TO DRAW UP REPLY

Spokesman Will Present Answer to Miners' Demands at Joint Conference Thursday

STRIKE THOUGHT IMMINENT

(By United Press)
Atlantic City, N. J., July 8—The anthracite coal operators went into conference at noon today at a hotel here to draw up their reply to the miners' demand for wage increases. The operators' spokesman will present the reply at the joint conference between operators and miners represented here tomorrow afternoon.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 8—Anthracite coal operators will go today to Atlantic City, N. J., where they will confer with representatives of the United mine workers of America in an effort to reach a new working agreement and avert a possible strike among the miners.

Despite tomorrow's "Peace parley" a strike of anthracite coal miners is imminent, according to Ellis Searles of Indianapolis, editor of the United Mine Workers journal.

Searles said the mine owners were certain to refuse the miner's demand in regard to wage increases and compel recognition of the miner's union and that the walk-out would be the inevitable result.

Declaring the miners were in earnest in their demand, Searles said they would not accept a reduction in their wages and would not consent to a renewal of their old working agreement.

SMALL BOY IS RECOVERING

When Sparklers Ignite

Roland Benedict, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Benedict, 635 West Fifth street, is recovering from severe burns which he received Saturday when a match lighted his overalls and set fire to sparklers in his pocket while celebrating the Fourth of July.

The little boy was almost a block from home when the match went off in his pocket and he ran all of the way home with the blaze burning rapidly. The burns were on the upper part of his left leg, and lower abdomen, and his hands were burned in an attempt to extinguish the flames. Dr. D. D. VanOsdol has been treating his injuries, and unless complications arise from the abdominal burns, he will recover within a few weeks.

South Bend Architects Plan Department Store, With Space Beneath For Parking Machines

TO COST MILLION AND HALF

South Bend, Ind., July 8—A new method of solving the auto traffic problem that may result in sweeping innovations in building construction throughout the larger cities of the nation is being worked out by architects for the new Lloyd's department building.

The building, to be erected at a cost of $1,500,000, will house a 3,000 seat movie theatre and an eight story department store.

Parking space for hundreds of autos will be provided in a garage of semi-subway construction in the building.

The parking space will be connected with the main building by elevators and stairs and the shopper or theater goer can leave his car and enter the building without getting out from under shelter.

Traffic officers of the South Bend police department hope the plan will help solve their problem by taking scores of parked autos off the streets and permitting more room for traffic.

Another Form of Taxation

Automobiles had been regulated and legislated in about all the ways possible until some one suggested the idea of "compulsory automobile insurance."Instantly a limitless field was opened for the agitator, professional politician and those socialistically inclined.If this idea could be put over on the automobile it could then be fastened on to any other business or industry.One who examines the average automobile damage claim is apt to have grave doubts as to whether an insurance policy is a deterrent of recklessness. The one who has insurance can have less concern about damage he causes than one whose negligence may deprive him of his bank account.There is every reason to believe that such a system would encourage rather than discourage carelessness.
The argument is made that such insurance would protect the "widow and orphan."But if such insurance tended to increase carelessness and injuries it would be poor protection. Secondly, there are no satisfactory statistics showing that any considerable percentage of serious accidents are caused by persons who possess neither personal property or insurance.The whole proposal is just another plan to launch the state in the insurance business after making a new form of taxation compulsory.

Cutting Out Officials Pompy

It has been a common statement that in public affairs two employes are usually hired, where one would be required to do the work in private affairs. President Coolidge has shown a determination to change
this method of doing public business if he possibly can. He has decided to dispense with the services of the White House Social Secretary and turn this work over to some man in the state department service.This means that a man in the state department will have to assume the additional responsibility of directing the conduct of all formal social functions at the White House
instead of being merely an advisor in regards to them as in the past. It has been suggested that the man on whom this additional duty will fall is likely to resign.It is a safe bet, however, that he will not resign. If the people want economy in public affairs they must back public officials who have thecourage to cut out red tape and public pomp even though it causes someone to lose a job on the public
payroll.FIFTEEN YEARS

the normal in both temperature and

Stewart's Washington Letter

CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—Taxation theory
and taxation practice
are two mighty different things.The theory, as pointed out in a preceding article, is that taxes
should be just sufficient to support efficient but economical government, and be divided up in proportion to people's ability to pay.
In practice, efficiency and economy are possible, but by no means means can the burden be equitably distributed.MOST of the state and lesser governments throughout this country depart, in practice, from the whole taxation theory. They can't distribute the load fairly, practically without exception they're wasteful and few of them are efficient.FROM the standpoint of economy the federal government,
under President Coolidge, does pretty well.Budget Director Lord plans to hold the coming fiscal year's expenditures down to three billions.
The last pre-war year figure was a billion and nearly 179 millions.
Considering that a dollar is worth only three-fifths what it was worth then and that interest being paid on more than twenty billions and a half of war debts, this isn't bad, let taxpayers kick as they may.Whether the federal government's efficient or not is a matter of opinion. My own is, as stated in the first article of this taxation series, that it's better than the electorate has any right to expect, from the way it votes
and doesn't vote.BUT the most conspicuous way in which taxation theory and practice fail to jibe is in the matter of distribution of the burden in proportion to the taxpayers' means.In the very nature of things the relatively poor man is soaked with practically the whole load, while the rich one carries hardly any.
Why? Because the former controls the sources of supply of all the necessities, comforts and luxuries of life, and before he handsthem over to the "ultimate consumer," includes his taxes in the price he charges for his stuff—as that "relatively poor" as an overwhelming majority of "ultimate consumers," foot the bill.TO be sure, the rich man is an "ultimate consumer" himself,
but he's only one individual,
at that. Three meals a day, one smoke at a time, a single suit of clothes at once are about his limit, just as they're the limit of anybody else.He may eat a little better food,
smoke Havanas instead of a pipe and have some extra raiment in the closet at home, but nothing like enough to offset the advantage inherent in his ability to pass his taxes along to someone farther down the line.THE government, as well as the people, dislikes an income tax.
Because it's recognized as a tax. Those who pay it want to know what's being done with the money they're distinctly recalling dug up.It makes 'em critical. In that lies its opportunity.
It's only theoretically fair, for
it's passed on down from above,
like any other tax. But it does result in a sharper public scrutiny of pork barrelism than an indirect tax.THE tariff, in addition to its "protective" feature, is a nice tax, from the government's standpoint, because it works subtly. It doesn't figure as a tax.One reason why President Coolidge turned down the Tariff Commission's recommendation for a reduced sugar impost was that it would cost the government forty millions, which would have to be replaced by "some kind of a tax."
As if the increased sugar prices
the public antes up, because of the duty, weren't a tax!THE treachery in the tariff is that its amount can't be ex-timated, as a tax.The government gets from it about a half billion a year. But in increased cost of living, it re-resents—God knows how much more. It's supposed to filter back into the government's hands, in devious ways.

But does it? Again, God knows.

Deserves Renomination (Marion, Ind.) Chronicle)No United States senator occupies a more commanding position in national legislation than our own senior senator, James E. Watson.
He has proved himself to be a statesman of the very first order.
He is an indefatigable worker. With him being a United States senator is a serious business. His long years of service in congress have given him an experience in national legislation enjoyed by few of our prominent statesmen. It is only natural that a man of his ability, experience and devotion to the public welfare should receive a renomaination from his party for the seat which he now occupies. It would be a political blunder of the first magnitude for both the republican party and the Hoosier state to dispense with the service of a man so splendidly equipped to continue his work in the national congress. The fact of the matter is, Senator Watson should receive a renomination
at the hands of his party by acclamation and a triumphant re-election.

RECEIVE BIDS ON
NEW UNIT AT PLANT

the plant, all ready to be turned in to the Elms here as needed.

The city of Greenfield recently entered into a contract of that nature in which their light plant was in need of more equipment. A direct line is installed from the main power house to Greenfield, and when Greenfield has a peak load or needs more power, the "juice" is turned into their lines, and a great saving perfected.

Several improvement resolutions were adopted. The sewer system for Belmont, to connect with the Stewart and Stewart sewer at Fourteenth and Main street, was approved, and a resolution adopted serving notice of the improvement. The resolution calling for the curb and gutter in West Eleventh street from Main to Spencer, was also approved. A similar resolution endorsing curb and gutter on both sides of Oliver street, from Ninth to Eleventh, also was passed. Remonstrances on these improvements will be heard at a special meeting, July 24.

The contract for garbage disposal in the city has expired, and a special meeting that will be held July 24, will also be used for receiving bids on the annual contract.

A petition of Ray Clarkson, and more than a dozen others, was presented, asking that the council compel the C. I. & W. railroad to move the stock pens outside the city limits. The pens are located at Fourth and Arthur streets, and people residing in that vicinity are remonstrating against the unsanitary conditions. The matter was referred to the health board of the city, with a request that they investigate and take some action.

Capt. Reed of the Pennsylvania railroad was present and spoke to the council of safety problems that confront the railroad. He stated that the best means of protection for streets, was an automatic signal that the railroad is installing on their lines now, and he asked for permission to go into further detail sometime concerning the device. He stated that more streets can be protected with 24 hour service, than at the present with crossing watchmen. The council will consider the matter at some future date, when a representative of the railroad will call with more detailed information.

The fire committee was authorized to purchase new seats for the council chamber, to harmonize with improvements that are being made about the city hall.

What Carroll Learned

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, July 8—Many causes are advanced as reasons for the difficulty college pitchers have in making the grade in fast professional company. They are all theories, however.

One of the best opinions ever advanced was given recently by Owen Carroll, the former Holy Cross College star. In four years of college baseball, Carroll won forty and lost only two games and he was regarded as the best pitcher developed on a college diamond since Mathewson. After finishing his college course Carroll reported to the Detroit Tigers and was knocked out of the box in his first game against the Boston Red Sox. After the game Carroll said:

"The first thing I discovered was that I was facing eight good batters instead of three that are found usually on a good college team. I found that was continually behind the batter. By that I mean that I was always in the hole. On the college diamond I was always in front of the batter and could waste a few balls to work on him. Major league batters can't be worked on that way. The first thing I discovered was that they would not hit at a bad ball. They wait out the pitcher and I found myself always in the hole where I would have to lay the ball right over the plate and take a chance.

"In college when a batter has two strikes on him he will swing invariably at anything, but it doesn't make any difference to a major league batter what you have on him. You can't pull him on a bad ball."

Although he did not make an auspicious start and in spite of the opinion of some smart baseball men that Ty Cobb is not the patient type of a manager to allow a young player a slow start, it is generally believed that Carroll will make good with the Tigers.

As far as Cobb's methods of handling the youngster is concerned it seems that the fiery Detroit manager did just what he was not expected to do.

It is said that Cobb told Carroll in the dressing room that all he was expected to do was to win one of his first six games. When Carroll went to the mound it was observed that all of the Detroit pitchers were on the bench and the bullpen was deserted. When the best of pitchers go to the mound it is the custom to send a catcher and one or two relief pitchers to the bullpen to be ready for a call. Even when Cobb says that Carroll could not go the limit, he did not send a relief pitcher to warm up until the very last minute.

Robert A. Innis, local banker, who has been bedfast at his home in North Harrison street for several weeks, has been improving so rapidly in the last week from his attack of pneumonia that doctors forecast hope of his complete recovery soon. ## Hot Weather Hints

A suit, dress or any other garment is so much cooler and more comfortable when it is clean and a suit looks so much neater and more dressy when it has a good press in it.

Don't neglect these facts, for personal appearance counts much and it must not be right just in cool weather and neglected in warm weather. To dress well and look nice, means the year 'round—not just at times.

Smart for Fall Or Summer

A CONSERVATIVE cut and elegance of materials make this wrap one of the loveliest Paris has sent over to us. It is of beige-colored hasha, cloth trimmed with bands of chipmunk fur whose tan and brown tones blend most harmoniously with the material. It will be as smart for early fall as for summer.

Washing Gloves

Hedda Hoyt Talks About Things That Interest The Busy Woman of 1925

By HEDDA HOYT

New York, July 8—Since many women insist upon wearing gloves in Summer time, the washable glove is the most sensible type one can wear. These are usually short-cut-fed affairs, or short slip-ons, in light tan shades and they are worn with short as well as long-sleeved frocks.

Among the washable types which have proven successful are chamamois, washable suede, doeskin, fabric and silk. Chamamois and doeskin should be washed in lukewarm water and soapsuds and soap should be left in them. If the soap is rinsed out, the glove becomes hard and shrinks. In rinsing, squeeze the water out with the hands and do not twist or wring as this gets the glove out of shape. All washable kids should be dried slowly in a cool place. Never attempt to dry by heating.

The washable suede glove is also washed in lukewarm water and suds but in the case of suede all soap should be thoroughly rinsed out as soap stiffens and shrinks suede.

Fabric gloves are washed in cold water, to which have been added mild soapsuds. Both fabric and silk gloves require soap that has no alkali. Very little soap should be used on silk or fabric, as it destroys the texture of the glove. One may iron silk or fabric gloves when still slightly damp, with a slightly warm iron.

After any glove has had several washings, it has a tendency to either shrink or stretch. The glove that has stretched, whether kid, fabric or silk, may be shrunk by washing in very hot water. The glove that has shrunk should be worked on the hand while wet or stretched with a glove stretcher. Kid gloves should always be worked on the hand while slightly damp, as they will then hold their shape better.

In buying wash gloves, one must not buy a size too large in the theory that they will shrink, for in most cases the wash glove stretches.

Last Showing Tonight

"No More Women," a comedy drama by Elmer Harris featuring Madge Bellamy, Matt Moore, Kathleen Clifford and a brilliant supporting cast, is to be the feature offering at the Castle theatre.

The third of a series of special productions made by Associated Authors, Inc., an organization of screen writers and technicians bent on giving the author of a story better opportunity to build his story into a living narrative, "No More Women" is evidence that Elmer Harris' fiction characters are, on the screen, exactly as he pictured them in his mind for, after writing the story, he prepared the scenario and produced the photoplay version.

"No More Women" is said to have a wealth of laughs and thrills in its development from a story based on broken hearts and false minds—and a faithful dog. It deals with the efforts of a young man, whose fiancée "stood him up" on the eve of their wedding and who vowing never to interest himself in women again, is on the verge of success when a pretty young miss being robbed by two ruffians screams and he finds that response to a common duty awakens his romantic soul and his pledge gradually evaporates.

"The Two Orphans"

D. W. Griffith's "Orphans of the Storm," based on the well-known stage play, "The Two Orphans," and released through United Artists Corporation, continues as the mecca of popular interest at the Princess theatre. Among the crowds are not a few who saw this screen epic when the engagement first began, but come back to enjoy more of its beauties.

The canvas is so vast and the figures so numerous, colorful and interesting that the work improves on the second seeing. The gorgeous tapestry is most skillfully woven with the heart-stirring, the grotesque, the lovely and the comic side by side in harmonious wealth of detail. It is such detail, as well as the re-sought thrill, that causes "Orphans of the Storm" enthusiasts to come again and again.

Always predominantly remains the picture of Henriette and Louise, the loveliest bit of genre on the wide mighty canvas. The Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish in these characters, Joseph Schildkraut as Henriette's lover, and Monte Blue as Henriette's rescuer in the famous eav-alry ride, continue their great hits. New material in the wild Car magnole dances and new fooling by Creighton Hale and Porter Strong in the comic roles add hugely to the mirth of the comic interludes.

MOUNTAIN PREACHER, UNCONCERNED ABOUT "MONKEY WAR", HEARS HILLS WHISPER OF GOD

By ALLENE SUMNER
NEA Service Writer

Dayton, Tenn., July 8—"We humans haven't no call to comprehend the incomprehensible, or scrutinize the inscrutable."

The little mountain cabin of "Old George" Morgan, mountain preacher, hews the green breast of Waldon's Ridge, 2100 feet above the town of Dayton, where "the monkey war," as the mountaineers call the evolution battle, rages.

Generation after generation of Morgans have lived atop Waldon's Ridge and watched the valley folks far below.

They call George Morgan, "the worst reader in the county." That means that he reads the most.

Mountaineers who sometimes see a newspaper and who keep the Holy Bible and a patent medicine almanac upon their bare tables, look at Morgan with awe.

"Old George Morgan's read this Darwin fellow," they tell you, and a bit of respect and fear for one who would so defy his God, runs through their voice.

We found "Old George" Morgan hoeing his dahlia plants and gazing at the blue misty valley more than 2000 feet below him.

The monkey war down there? George Morgan's genial old face sobered.

"So much wrangling and jangling," he said, "all because folks want to comprehend the incomprehensible and scrutinize the inscrutable."

"Look at my mountains" and his lean brown fingers pointed to a distant peak creamy with chestnut bloom. "They know and they keep still. When folks know, they keep still, too."

Morgan studied to be a minister long years ago in a little theological seminary down in Athens, Tenn.

But he came back to the mountain of his fathers without his degree and sheepskin.

But degree or none, he went upon his work, tending his bees and eating and fruiting three weeks, mounting his horse, Bible in saddlebag, and preaching the word of God to soul-hungry mountaineers on the Sabbath.

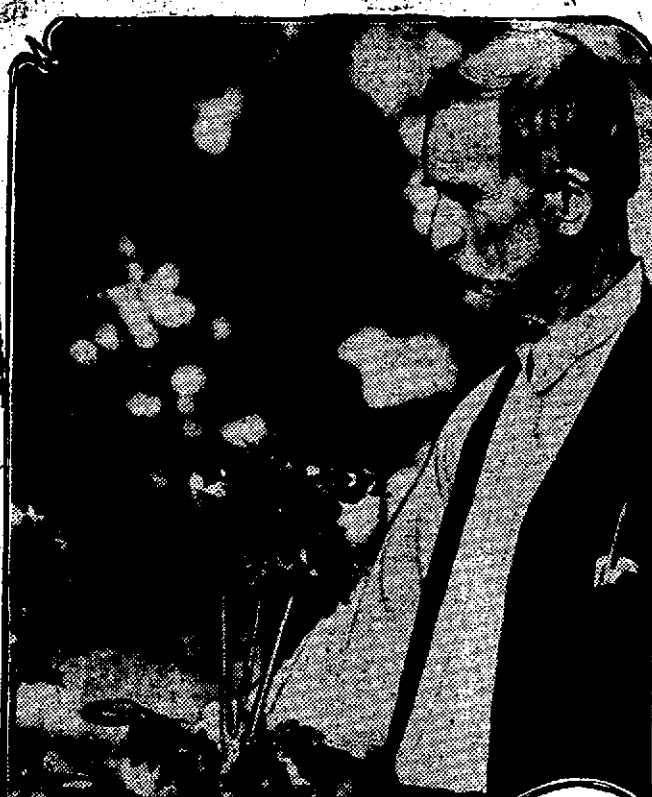

"Folks can't begin to doubt one word in the Bible," says the mountain preacher, "without beginning to doubt all of them. And then where'll they be?"

Any evolutionary teachings that deny the special creation of man are a menace to the state's young, declares Morgan, and he's for any law that will keep the schools safe for children.

Morgan cast a bright blue eye over skies so blue.

"At night I sit in front of the cabin and watch the stars" he went on.

"They make me hunger to know things! Why we came and where we're going and if our folks are waiting for us over there."

"But that's sin, and I make myself stop bothering God and just sit still and watch 'em up there all crisp and cold like fire, and I know He knows, an' that's enough."

"I'm just a homespun plain man and he is God. Who am I to comprehend the incomprehensible?"

"But God comes closer to us folks on the mountains than to those down in the valley. It's easier for us to believe."

"There were 10 of us kids running over these mountains, and our mammy and pappy didn't have much, but they taught us that cool mountain air and spring water and the green grass and the blue sky were enough, and not to be asking for other things."

"I learned to keep satisfied in life. I got another suit of clothes and enough money for buryin' and I got my Bible and my wife and I aim I'm the happiest man alive. I can live on $100 a year up here."

Black smoke rose like a wraith from the lowlands, and the toot of a factory whistle echoed faintly through the ridge.

"They slide so down there for things they don't need," said the mountain preacher.

"I don't want to take nothin' away from life with me but happiness and my belief in my Book. I want those little children down there to have that, too."

Woman Says She Drank Case of Whiskey Each Night

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 7—Mrs. Frank A. Davis, drank a case of whiskey a night, she told federal officials after being arrested for shipping five trunks containing seventy cases of liquor here from Indianapolis.

"That whiskey is all for me," Mrs. Davis said. "I cannot get along without it. I drink a case a night."

Whereupon her bail was set at $3,000 and her husband at $2,000.
